VETERANS OF GREAT WAR

A Column Devoted to the Interests of the Men Who Defended the Nation on Land and Sea.

Maj. Gen. Henry J. Allen, commanding the United States Army of occupation in Germany, and a company of American infantry from the Rhine are to attend the unveiling of the Flirey monument, at Flirey, France, this summer. The monument is a memorial to the American expeditionary forces. John G. Emery, national commander of the American Legion, will be one of the speakers.

William N. Day of Great Falls, Mont., has been appointed national auditor of the American Legion by National Commander Emery.

The American Legion pilgrimage to France started Wednesday from New York city when 250 members embarked. They will be met at Sherburne by a color guard of American troops from Coblenz and by a special committee of high officials representing the French government.

The members of the American Legion party will attend the unveiling of the Flirey monument, which will be of international importance. The monument was erected by the citizens of the municipality of Lorraine as tribute to the American expeditionary forces. President Millerand, Premier Briand and the marshals of France will attend the ceremonies. National Commander Emery of the American Legion is to deliver an address expressing the sentiments of America toward France. Former commanders of the American Legion, Franklin D. Olin, of Philadelphia and Henry D. Lindsey of Dallas, Tex., also will deliver addresses.

With the announcement of a centennial rate for members of the American Legion who attend the unveiling of the monument at the Flirey monument, the legion at Kansas City October 31 and November 1 and 2, officials in charge of arrangements here for the convention believe that the meeting will exceed preceding conventions in attendance by many thousands. The railroad that has announced the special convention rate are the Missouri Pacific, Frisco, Rock Island and the Kansas City Southern. Other roads are expected to follow with announcements of reduced rate concessions to legion members.

The zone embraced by the railroads that have made announcements includes Minnesota, South Dakota, Iowa, Nebraska, Illinois, Missouri, Kansas, Colorado, Oklahoma, Texas, Arkansas, Louisiana, Tennessee, Alabama, Mississippi and New Mexico.

At the last meeting of National Capital Post No. 127, Veterans of Foreign Wars, a number of candidates were elected and obligated to membership. They were: Maj. Fleetwood Grover, U. S. M. C.; Lieut. W. I. Jenkins, John A. McCollum, Mark H. Payne, Arthur C. McGuire, Walter B. Lindsay, John E. Leary, Andrew J. Phillips, Alvin Reiners, William McFarland and Eugene R. Brown. Commander George L. Tait presided.

The recruiting committee reported it is working on a plan for a membership drive. The sick committee reported several members who have been ill are recovering. Arrangements are being made for an entertainment at the first meeting next month.

At the joint executive and grievance committee meeting of all chapters of the American Legion, in which a letter was read from Col. Robert G. Woodside, commander-in-chief, Veterans of Foreign Wars, in which he stated that the American Legion is mailing to the heads of the United States War Veterans and the American Legion, a letter asking them to meet at a special meeting to be held at the American Legion, in which a letter was read from Col. ## NEWS OF THE NAVAL RESERVE

Assignment of the U. S. S. Eagle 56, now in reserve at the Portsmouth, N. H., navy yard, to the naval reserves of the District of Columbia as a training ship has been announced by the Navy Department. The commandant of the first naval district has informed the department that in response to the message of the bureau of operations he had designated that vessel for the local reserves.

The vessel, he also informed the department, will be ready to turn over to the naval reservists at the Portsmouth navy yard August 31. The local reservists have been waiting for notice of the assignment of another training vessel here for some time. As soon as they receive official information that the vessel has been assigned, together with instructions to send a crew of local reservists to Portsmouth to bring it down the coast and up the bay and river to Washington, the officers and men to man her will be selected from those who have been regular in their attendance at the weekly drills of the reserves and men who have shown interest in their naval duties.

The realization that they are soon to have a vessel of the Eagle type here for training purposes was received by the reservists with much enthusiasm, as a number of them are struggling along under difficulties for some months, with only a small and inadequate subcommittee to take week end training trips down the Potomac river and Chesapeake bay.

The assignment of a vessel of this type here, it was said at the Navy Department, is a part of the plan to put the reserves of the whole country on a highly efficient plane, an adjunct to the regular Navy in time of war. Gradually the reservists who entered the Navy during the war and served only during that period, and who have been lax in their naval interest since the war, are being weeded out, and only those officers and men who show a zealous desire to continue their naval duties will be kept in the service.

The department is planning to do everything possible to make it interesting for those who remain. It was said, and every possible help will be given them. Where practicable and possible even the equipment of the ship will be kept in a high state of efficiency will be provided.

These new vessels, built especially for anti-submarine duty during the war, are modern in construction and have the latest naval propelling machinery, together with modern listening devices for the detection of underwater craft. Training on such a vessel, it was pointed out by officers of the local reserve, will at the same time take any action aboard any ship of the Navy in the event it becomes necessary again to recall the reserves to active duty.

Lieut. Commander John Balch Blood gave an interesting lecture on navigation to officers of the reserve during the drill period last Monday night.

The subcommittee 210, commanded by Ensign C. M. Donahue, left her dock at Water and O streets southwest yesterday afternoon with naval reservists aboard for a training cruise down the Potomac. It is scheduled to return late this afternoon.

NO FIRES; BERRIES FAIL.

Mountain Crops Lost When Woods Remain Unburned.

Special Dispatch to The Star.

LYNCHBURG, Va., August 6.—"Pin money" from huckleberries for people who live in the Virginia mountains will be small in future years, if the federal forest reserve is able to keep down the mountain fires. It is alleged that the berry bush cannot grow in the mountains in the undergrowth, that results if the mountains are not burned over as they were prior to the coming of the protection that comes from the forest reserve attaches. This condition, of course, does not prevail down in the valleys where the berries will still flourish as they formerly did on the mountain ranges.

NATIONAL GUARD NEWS

John K. Kain, commanding Company B, District National Guard, has just been promoted from lieutenant to captain. Capt. Kain has been a member of the guard since the close of the world war, when he enlisted in Company C of the 5th Infantry. He was at the Central Officers' Training School at Camp Lee, Va., when the armistice was signed.

Brig. Gen. Anton Stephan, commanding the District Guard, has called upon company commanders to nominate not to exceed two enlisted men of their companies to take examination with a view to being commissioned in the Engineer Corps of the local guard. Men interested have been instructed to take the matter up direct with their company commanders, as no formal application is to be made by the enlisted man concerned.

At the present time there are vacancies among the commissioned personnel of the District of Columbia National Guard for two first lieutenants and three second lieutenants. The opportunity for commission in the local National Guard is exceptional at this time as a result of the expansion of the organizations in accordance with provisions of law. The policy of the District of Columbia National Guard authorities in the past has been to select officers from among the enlisted personnel of the guard.

Practice of the District of Columbia rifle team, which is to participate in the national matches held at Camp Perry, Ohio, during September, is progressing satisfactorily. The members of the team have not been made members of the guard interested in rifle shooting are invited to Wednesday and Saturday afternoons at the range, Congress Heights, perfecting themselves in the shooting game so as to make a creditable showing.
